

Seriously?

Stephen P Brown

Clarinet in B $\flat$

Andante  $\text{♩} = 88$

mf

4 drums

mf

This is my sense of humour: Memorize this piece, place four sheets of music on your music stand and spend a lot of time preparing for the performance (making sure the drums are in the right place, that both players can see each other clearly, etc.). After the last note, hold the pause for as long as you can stand it, and finally move to one side and take your bow. Probably the audience will still be wondering what's going on.

BTW, if you haven't figure it out yet, the melody represents someone questioning a fact they've just been told. The joke is that the audience hears this piece and hopefully thinks... "Seriously?!"
